Many people simply do not know there are physicians who specialize in treating aches and pains. Unlike a sore throat, which is easily diagnosed, diseases that produce aches and pains are often complex and difficult to identify. Rheumatologists are physicians with years of additional specialized training in the diagnosis and treatment of those diseases which affect the bones, muscles & joints. As specialists, they provide comprehensive medical care for more than 100 different types of arthritis as well as other musculoskeletal disorders. At the Arthritis Treatment Center, they will not only diagnose and treat your disorder, but will teach you what you need to know to ensure that you can take an active role in managing your condition.

If we treat you, we help you for a day.
If we teach you, we help you for a lifetime.
